To Whom It May Concern

Yaller Skunk Theatre Company

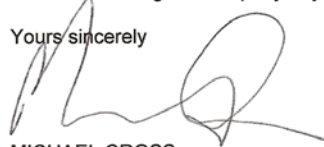

The Key Theatre Company and Peterborough City Council have worked with Yaller Skunk Theatre Company on the last two Holocaust Memorial Projects held in the city.

These projects have involved extensive workshop development and leadership roles, working with a number of local schools and colleges, providing stimulus and guidance on performance pieces and working with the local authority and the Key Theatre to 'stage' the annual city centre service.

The Holocaust workshops have culminated each year in a performance at the Key Theatre and Yaller Skunk's Mark Curtis has provided technical and artistic direction for these events – working closely with theatre's in house production team and Youth Theatre Officer.

The company has provided excellent ideas and commitment to these projects and the final results have been both thought provoking and challenging for the young people involved. The company has considerable expertise in working with young people and the creative energy and quality of the work is excellent. Obviously the success of any event of this type is dependent on the quality of the youngsters involved but the level of achievement and learning experienced here in Peterborough has been widely applauded and I would have no hesitation in recommending the company to you for any similar projects within your area.

Yours sincerely
